WITH ₹10 CR IN DAY 1 ADVANCE BOOKINGS

Jailer may surpass Rocky Aur Rani

Pathaan delivered the biggest Day 1 collection this year

ALOKANANDA CHAKRABORTY
New Delhi, August 8

WITH ₹10 CRORE in Day 1 advance bookings, Rajinikanth's Jailer is set to become the biggest Tamil release of 2023.

Going by the numbers from industry tracker Sacnilk, Jailer may even outdo big grossers Oppenheimer (English; ₹14 crore at BO on Day 1) and Rocky Aur Rani Ki Prem Kahani (Hindi; ₹11.10 crore on Day 1) by a long chalk.

Shah Rukh Khan's Pathaan had delivered the biggest Day 1 collection this year, logging ₹57 crore.

Jailer will be released strategically on a Thursday across 3,000 screens in the country, in Tamil, Telugu and Hindi.

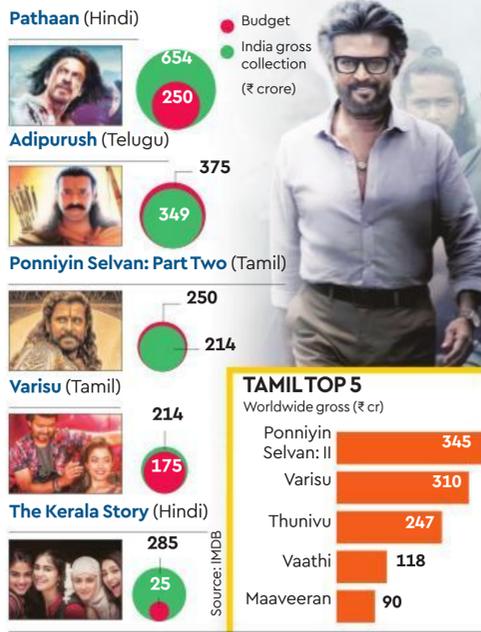

Gautam Dutta, co-CEO, PVR INOX, said releasing films on Thursday is not new. Studios in the south, he pointed out, have often had releases, with strong casts, in the middle of the week to garner additional footfalls.

Pathaan too released on a Wednesday (January 25) to leverage the longish weekend with Republic Day falling on a Thursday. "In this case I can only assume that the producers want to leverage the longish weekend that August 15 on a Tuesday will create," says Vanita Kohli-Khandekar, media expert and author.

The film marks Rajinikanth's return to the silver screen after his last appearance in the 2021 film Annaatthe. Like Jailer, Annaatthe too opened on a Thursday and collected ₹34.7 crore that day.

On Day 2, collections were

was down to ₹24.1 crore but by the end of its first week, they had crossed ₹110 crore.

This year has been particularly good for Tamil cinema. As per Sacnilk, Mani Ratnam's Ponnin Selvan 2 earned ₹32 crore on its opening day with 59.94% Tamil occupancy, 10.20% Hindi occupancy and 33.23% Malayalam occupancy. Thalapathy Vijay's Varisu grossed ₹26.5 crore on day one of release, across India.

If media reports are to be believed, quite a few companies down south have declared Thursday a holiday so as to avoid leave letters piling up.

Tickets for the film are priced between ₹800 and ₹1,400 for shows that start as early as 6 am on August 10 in tech capital Bengaluru.

The city has allotted the highest number of shows for its opening day, film critic and trade analyst Ramesh Bala has said.

One can depend on a Tom Cruise (61), a Clint Eastwood (93), a Robert De Niro (79), or closer home Rajinikanth (72) and Amitabh Bachchan (80) to deliver, say experts.

"They are stars and actors and their magic endures across generations.

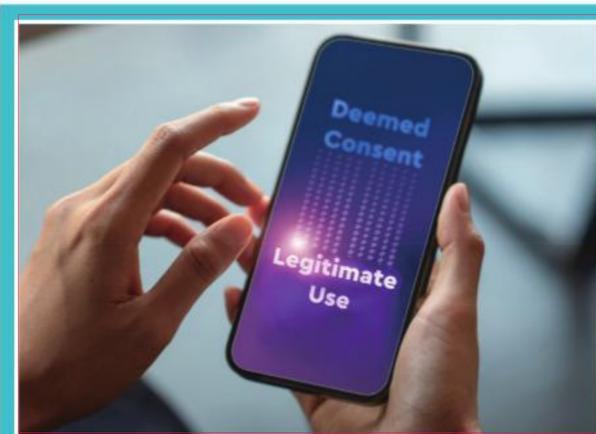

"There is one generation that grew up watching them, another which grew up hearing about how good they are and seeing them in older different roles.

"It is simply the magic of their stardom, their craft and fandom," says Kohli-Khandekar.

EXPLAINER

THE REBRANDING OF 'DEEMED CONSENT'

The Digital Personal Data Protection (DPDP) Bill, which was passed by the Lok Sabha on Monday, has done away with the "deemed consent" provision in the 2022 version of the Bill, raising concerns among many companies about the difficulty of doing business without such a clause. We look at these concerns and what exactly the Bill has done on this count

Changes in the new Bill

THOUGH THE TERM 'deemed consent' is missing from the DPDP Bill 2023, the Bill has rebranded the clause to be applicable to "certain legitimate uses". As per the new Bill, data can be processed without explicit consent as long as it is given voluntarily and is for a legitimate purpose, details of which have been mentioned.

In all other cases, the extent of the consent is limited—the data can only be processed for the specific purpose for which it is deemed to be given and must be necessary for fulfilling the purpose. Data fiduciaries can't claim that data was voluntarily given up by data principal and use this data for any purpose that the latter doesn't reasonably expect it to be used for.

Additionally, the new Bill has removed the public interest grounds for which data was deemed to be given, such as prevention or detection of fraud, network and information security, processing of publicly available data, etc.

What is deemed consent

DEEMED CONSENT is a legal concept allowing for the processing of personal data without explicit consent when certain conditions are met. Under the 2022 DPDP Bill, this was one of the lawful ways of processing data. It could be used in situations where processing was necessary for providing a service and it could be 'reasonably expected' that the data principal would provide such data. However, many had said that this wasn't comparable to the 'legitimate interest' provision under the General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) of the EU.

As per GDPR, businesses must have a lawful basis for processing personal data, and one of the six such bases is legitimate interest, applied when an organisation has a genuine and legitimate reason for processing personal data, provided these interests are not outweighed by the rights & freedoms of the data principal.

CONSENT IS DEEMED TO BE GIVEN

For the issue of subsidies, benefits, services, certificates, licences, permits, etc., as long as such consent was previously obtained by a state instrumentality for the purpose and the data is available digitally

In the interest of the sovereignty and integrity of the country and the security of the State

To comply with a judgement or decree or order issued under any law in India or

Illustration as provided in the Bill

X, a pregnant woman, enrolls herself on an app or website to avail of government's maternity benefits programme, while consenting to provide her personal data for the purpose of availing of such benefits. Government may process the personal data of X processing to determine her eligibility to receive any other prescribed benefit from the government.

order relating to claims of a contractual or civil nature under any law in force outside India

For responding to a medical emergency of the individual or anyone else

For taking measures to ensure the safety of, or provide assistance or services to, any individual during any disaster

To provide health services to any individual during an epidemic, outbreak of disease, or any other threat to public health

What the concerns are...

THE 2022 Bill had provided businesses greater flexibility, and allowed for personal details to be processed for any purpose where it could be "reasonably expected" that she would provide such data. Several crucial matters for which consent was "deemed" to have been given under the 2022 Bill have been deleted in the new Bill.

This includes recruitment or termination of employment, attendance verification, assessment of performance (i.e., biometric access data) and public interest matters such as credit scoring, fraud prevention, mergers, and debt recovery. That said, some of these matters have been covered elsewhere in the new Bill to a limited extent. A US-based global trade body representing companies like Google, Amazon, Apple and others has questioned the removal of the "deemed consent" provision. The trade body says the provision is critical to provide a basis for processing personal data to enable the proper functioning of different types of digital services. It has also said that further work is needed to ensure the framework provides clear legal grounds for businesses to process data where consent is not possible or technically feasible, such as prevention of fraud, ensuring high network security, and other essential business activities.
